Board Self-Evaluation

Dr. Kristen Miles noted that the self-evaluation tool is based on years of research finding that when board members are doing the indicators well student achievement increases. Board members provided initial observations on the evaluation. The facilitator summarized the areas Board Members are doing well and areas identified that need improvement.

Board members provided thoughts or questions on items where there was incongruency. Board Member suggestion to include the data as part of the next round of onboarding new Board Members.

There was discussion regarding what the Board wants to do with the self-evaluation information, and reviewed suggested goals for improvement. There was discussion about governance versus programmatic question/decision making, and what a monitoring calendar could look like, as well as how to implement work on board goals and protocols.

Dr. Miles wrapped up the discussion noting that building a monitoring plan will be crucial. Chair Wang asked if there was interest in continuing the conversation at either a board retreat or another work session
